

Do the World a Favor

I knew you were going through a rough time; I had to help out. I love helping people, because I know they would do the same for me. It always puts me in the best mood, and it brings a smile to my face.

It'll all happened in one weekend, my best friend Lauren didn't come out to the barn that whole day, I could tell her horse missed her a lot. I decided to text her to see what was going on; she was out of town because her grandmother had passed away. Lauren was extremely upset about her grandma, and also because she got her horse Mosbee really fit and even on day off could throw him off. I came up with a brilliant idea; I tacked up Mosbee and rode him for Lauren. I knew she would appreciate it. Lauren finally returned home the next day. I told her what I did, and she was filled with joy she was also very thankful!

On Sunday I went to my boyfriend Jake's house. I am very close to his mom; she is like a second mom to me, and she is always to me. That day she had a really rough day and she just wanted to relax. She warned me before I went inside that the house was a mess. I went in and sat down; I started thinking that if I cleaned the house, how happy she would be. That's exactly what I did; I grabbed the large vacuum. I vacuum the whole house, cleaning and picking up things. Jakes mom got out of the shower and made it down the stairs, as soon as she hit the bottom of the stairs her mouth hit the floor; it was the best feeling knowing that I brightened her day!

Doing a kind thing is not a hard task, they don't always have to be big things; it's the thought that counts. You never know, that little thing you did could change their whole day. When you do kind things for others, it will eventually come around and bring you good luck.
